DEFENSE IN BANKERS' TRIAL WILL CONCLUDE TO-DAY.

MUCH EVIDENCE YESTERDAY

DIRECTORS KNEW LITTLE OF MISSOURI NATIONAL AFFAIRS.

Interest in the trial is increasing, and chairs had to be supplemented in the courtroom yesterday—Major Hood a witness.

Unless some important testimony of unusual length comes up to-day in the Rieger-Covington trial, the case will go to the jury to-morrow night. Every hour gives the case an added interest from the standpoint of the spectators. The courtroom was hardly large enough to accommodate the audience that attended the trial during both the morning and afternoon sessions. The benches that usually suffice to accommodate the onlookers were brought in yesterday and chairs were brought in. Even then a great many had to stand.

The first witness yesterday morning was Frank H. Kumpf, who was a director in the Missouri National bank at the time it was closed. His testimony was but a continuation of the evidence showing that the directors of the bank were exceedingly ignorant of the commonest transactions of President Rieger and Cashier Covington during the last two or three years the bank was in existence.

Major Calvin Hood, of Emporia, Kas., who was associated with Charles J. Lantry in what is known as the Hood and Lantry syndicate, for the purchase of a controlling interest in the bank, was put on the stand just before noon. As he was to testify again during the afternoon, the only important evidence to which he testified was regarding the correspondence between himself and President Rieger during the time he began negotiating for the purchase of stock. All the letters written to him by Mr. Rieger at that time were read and they set forth the unparalleled opportunities for large returns under the terms of the bank in most growing terms. The prospective director was admonished that time was slipping from under his feet and that every hour he delayed in investing meant loss on his part. His letters to President Rieger were copies of his day.

Charles J. Lantry, of Strong City, Kas., was associated with Calvin Hood in buying up stock in the institution, and he was the first witness put on the stand after the noon recess. He had no experience in banking prior to his connection with the Missouri National, but he had operated extensively in the purchase of stock in the spring of 1896.

"What steps did you take to satisfy yourself as to the solvency of the bank before purchasing stock in it?" asked Mr. Rieger. "No steps beyond satisfying myself that Mr. Rieger was capable and honest as a financier," answered Mr. Lantry. On the word of Rieger he believed the Benjamin W. Towley notes, aggregating $24,000, were perfectly good. He was satisfied on the same authority that the $24,000 note of the Standard Lumber Company was good, and also the $12,000 note of M. W. Oliver, of Oliver & O'Brien. Witness knew of no discount committee and understood that the officers were authorized to pass on all paper.

Attorney Hart then read letters from Hood and Lantry showing that the first was anxious to get H. P. Clark into the bank as assistant cashier to examine into its transactions. Further testimony regarding the Lantry-Hood syndicate having experts examine the assets of the bank before they went into it was pronounced by Judge Adams to have no bearing on the case, as the Towley and Oliver transactions had already been completed.

Receiver Wallace on the Stand.
Receiver T. B. Wallace was the next witness and testified that he found $24,500 of Hale Harness Company paper signed by B. W. Towley. Its president, when he took charge of the bank, and that he realized $2,073.33 on the paper. This is an important point, as it shows that $2,576.33 of the said paper was practically worthless. Witness also stated that two Oliver notes, aggregating $36,000, were in the bank at the time it came into his hands.

On the Standard Lumber Company paper, aggregating $24,000, he has realized $2,454.49 from the sale of property and collection of
